Anji Hallewell speaks on the question every audience is quietly asking: how do I stay relevant when work keeps changing? Twelve years on the hiring side, then nine coaching senior professionals, taught her what actually moves a career, and each of her three tested keynotes is shaped to the audience in front of her.

KEYNOTES

Reinvention Is The New Career Security

In a world shaped by AI, disruption and constant change, the old rules of career security no longer apply. This keynote explores why reinvention has become the most important skill of the modern workforce and how professionals can remain relevant, resilient and future-ready throughout their careers.

Ideal for: mid-career professionals, alumni networks, professional associations and career transition audiences.

The Human Skills AI Can't Replace

As AI transforms industries and automates more tasks, many professionals are asking the same question: "What will still make me valuable?" This keynote explores the uniquely human capabilities that will become increasingly important in the age of AI and how individuals can develop them to stay relevant and future-ready.

Ideal for: Future of Work conferences, AI events, leadership summits, HR conferences and innovation forums.

The Career Ladder Is Dead. Now What?

The traditional career ladder was designed for a different era. Today's careers are increasingly non-linear, with professionals navigating multiple roles, industries, reinventions and opportunities throughout their working lives. This keynote explores how to successfully navigate the changing world of work and build a career that evolves with you.

Ideal for: MBA students, universities, business schools and mid-career fairs and summits.

ABOUT ANJI

Anji Hallewell is the founder of Natural Genius Academy and a multi-award-winning Global Career Reinvention Coach, twice named Best Career Coach. She spent twelve years on the hiring side in talent acquisition, management and development, working across GroupM, Fox and National Geographic, then nine years coaching senior professionals through reinvention. Her work centres on one conviction: reinvention is the new career security.

She has spoken on stages across Asia, from corporate teams at Spotify and Johnson & Johnson to conference audiences across South East Asia, and is regularly invited to speak on the future of work, career reinvention and staying relevant in the age of AI disruption.
